

I am a Republican, but I am outraged to learn of Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to air a clearly anti-John Kerry spot on the public airwaves just days before the election. Sinclair is using the public airwaves for free, and is thereby obligated to serve the public interest. That is clearly not what is happening here. The "documentary" planned to be aired is so patently one-sided that it makes a mockery of the FCC's equal time requirements. If the FCC refuses to stop this broadcast, it will lose all legitimacy in the eyes of the public. This is not about who you support, but rather about supporting democracy and preventing corruption. As a citizen, I insist that the FCC intervene.
